"With the continued growth and evolution of the Women in Electronics (WE) organization, we are excited to welcome Meenal Sethna to our Advisory Council as we look to further amplify our mission of opening doors to more opportunity for women in the electronics industry," said Jackie Mattox, WE President and Founder.

"I am proud to join the Women in Electronics Advisory Council and I look forward to supporting the important work of WE in the development of women in the electronics industry," said Meenal Sethna, Littelfuse Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer. "At Littelfuse, we believe that diverse people deliver bold solutions and sustained success — a sentiment that aligns well with WE's commitment to the advancement of women across our industry."

Ms. Sethna brings a wealth of valuable leadership experience to the Women in Electronics Advisory Council, having served in senior roles with Baxter, Motorola, and ITW before joining Littelfuse in 2015. Ms. Sethna has been the executive sponsor of the Littelfuse Women's Initiative Network (WiN) since its inception in 2017. WiN is an employee-driven resource group that seeks to enhance and support the development of women, specifically in technology fields, by leveraging an engaged global network of Littelfuse associates. WiN creates a forum to inspire and accelerate associate advancement through its mission to educate, engage, and empower through a supportive network that elevates women and enhances business results.
